

Besides beans and culture, Boston produces a very fair brand of baseball.

"The glory that was Greece" seems to have been taken by the allies along with her ships, railroads, forts and so on.

If President Wilson were really in earnest in telling the suffrage women "I come to fight for you," he would have put a suffrage measure through Congress by the same stop-watch method that he used to force the railway wage increase bill through.

The World's Mistake

Joseph Pulitzer is dead. He left a great newspaper property—the New York World—and an estate running into the millions. During his lifetime the columns of the World were filled with the praise of Charles E. Hughes—as investigator of the gas and the insurance scandals and as Governor of New York. In Joseph Pulitzer's will he named Charles E. Hughes an executor and trustee of his estate, a duty which Mr. Hughes, then on the bench, declined. Joseph Pulitzer is dead and the present editor of the New York World evidently "knows not Joseph" for the World to-day is filled with absurd and venomous attacks upon Mr. Hughes' integrity of mind. The World has apparently taken a contract to re-elect Wilson which it will find it cannot fulfill.

Carelessness of Smokers

The person in Morrisville who carelessly dropped a lighted cigarette in the shavings near a large mill in that town probably had not read the admirable editorial on the "glowworm cigarette" by the Newport Express and Standard, in which the contemporary endeavor to point out the fire hazards of the lighted cigarette which is snuffed out of the ordinary smoker's fingers with reckless abandon, to fall where it may. The mill in Morrisville was not burned, but the failure was not due to any miscarriage of the contributing cause but rather to the effectiveness of the fire fighting machinery of that town. It is shameful—the utter carelessness of many smokers, chiefly the smokers of cigarettes. They take a few puffs from the whitecoated pencil and then toss the burning brand away and pass along without as much as a glance in the direction in which the cigarette is thrown. For some reason or other it is taken by many people to be a sign of smartness to toss off these fire brands with utter unconcern and with absolute irresponsibility. The resulting damage often rises into very large figures; yet the smoker does not know his part in the affair because his mind has been concerned one small bit as he throws away the cigarette without stopping to extinguish the fire. If only a slight effort were put out by smokers a very great deal of the annual waste from fire would be avoided.—Barre Times

The current issue of the Vermonter is devoted mainly to Lyndon and the agricultural buildings, an institute which has become the property of Vermont through the generosity of Theodore N. Vail—"constructive peer of president or king, financier, or traveler, wise in council, true and kind, who loves not America less but Vermont more;" as the publication says, under a splendid likeness of Mr. Vail. The number has many illustrations showing what is being developed at Lyndon, and especially in the training of the boys and girls.

Senator Page off for Seashore

[Rutland Herald]

United States Senator Carroll S. Page yesterday afternoon left the Rutland hospital where, since September 20, he had been taking a "rest cure" following a nerve racking campaign for renomination at the September primaries. In company with his daughter, Miss Alice Page, he left Rutland on his way to Atlantic City, N. J., where he plans to remain several weeks, probably most of the time before the opening of Congress in December.

That he might receive the fullest benefit of the treatment of his physician, Dr. W. W. Townsend, Senator Page, after his two or three days in the hospital, denied himself to visitors. He said yesterday that he was feeling better than at any time for six months past.

Senator Page's son, Russell S. Page, who is in charge of the Senator's business affairs at Hyde Park, was in Rutland Saturday to confer with his father. Miss Page will remain at Atlantic City with her father.

It is not unlikely that the Senator will return to Vermont to cast his vote at the state and national elections next month.

The Herald takes pleasure in congratulating Senator Carroll S. Page on his gratifying rally from a rather serious condition, brought on by the nervous strain and overwork of a hard fought campaign. Expert medical attendance, good nursing and absolute quiet and rest are mainly responsible for his improvement, which his family and friends hope to see continued at Atlantic City, where he went yesterday. The Senator has not only proved that he "had another good fight in him," but that a life of temperance and careful living have enabled him to overcome his recent disability.

[Burlington Free Press]

The people of Vermont without regard to political affiliation will extend congratulations to United States Senator Carroll S. Page, who has been able to leave the hospital in Rutland, where he has been taking the "rest cure," for Atlantic City. He will remain on the Jersey coast probably until Congress opens in December, with a possible return to vote next month. Senator Page will receive the best wishes of all our people for his early and complete restoration to health.

Dies Suddenly From Shock

Mrs. Lorenzo Godfrey died very suddenly at her home on West Hill last Saturday afternoon from the effects of a shock. She had been enjoying good health of late and had been apparently as well as usual until she suffered the shock at 2:30 in the afternoon, which was about an hour before her death. She did her usual work that day and called on neighbors in the forenoon.

The funeral was held Monday with a prayer at the house at 12 o'clock and services at the church at Morristown Corners at two, with burial in Mountain View cemetery. Rev. W. E. Baker of the Congregational church officiated and the bearers were Homer and Everett May of Waterbury, Atlee May of Morristown, Gerald Hadlock of Hyde Park and Albert and Galey Godfrey of Morristown. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers from the family and friends of the deceased, including a wreath, bearing the inscription, "Mother", from the children, and one from the husband, inscribed with the word "Wife".

Oliva Mernettia Preston, a daughter of John and Sophia Alger Preston, was born in Stowe Dec. 27, 1868. She was married Feb. 7, 1887, at Waterbury to A. C. May and her second marriage to Lorenzo Godfrey occurred Feb. 2, 1902. Rev. Geo. Tabor of Morrisville officiating. She was the mother of seven children, five by her first marriage and two by the second marriage. They are as follows—Homer and Everett May of Waterbury, Mrs. Myrtle Culver and Atlee May of Morristown, Mrs. Violet Hadlock of Hyde Park and George and Greta Godfrey, aged 10 and 8 years. She is also survived by a brother, Rev. R. L. D. Preston, of Maple Ridge, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Ellen Godfrey of Moscow and Mrs. Rose Zehner of Morristown; two step-sons, Albert and Galey Godfrey, of Morristown, and two step-daughters, Mrs. Maud Vaughn of Milford, N. Y., and Mrs. Ida Dowe of Waterbury.

Her life, which had been a notably useful one, had been lived almost entirely in Morristown and Stowe and in both places she leaves a large circle of friends who sincerely mourn her death. She was a kind and loving wife and mother, a good neighbor and true friend. The family has the sympathy of the community in their sorrow.

Record Price for Potatoes.

H. Waite & Son, the Morrisville wholesale produce dealers have been paying $1.00 per bushel for potatoes at the car the past week, which is a record price for this crop at this season of the year and doubtless as high as the price will go at the car this year. This firm is now loading at Johnson, Morrisville, Wolcott, Greensboro, West Danville and Walden. In speaking of the crop this year H. Waite informed a representative of this paper that the crop was considerably below the average, a smaller acreage planted and unfavorable weather conditions being among the causes for a light crop. According to this firm who have made quite a study of potato growing there is no crop that needs the care and attention as potatoes. Care must be exercised in seed selection, soil, cultivation, fertilization, spraying and harvesting. According to Mr. Waite's observations, farmers who make a study of potato culture and observe certain rules, eight times out of ten get a good crop.

THE LATE CHARLES P. HOGAN.

The following memorial was recently read before the Franklin County Bar Association and as it pertains to one who was well-known throughout Lamoille County, especially in Morrisville, Hyde Park and Johnson, we give it place in these columns, knowing it will interest many of our readers:

IN MEMORY.

"That star of the field, which so often hath poured
Its beam on the battle, is set;
But enough of its glory remains on each sword,
To light us to victory yet."

Charles P. Hogan, son of Charles and Ann Hogan, was born in County Tyrone, north of Ireland, August 27th, 1843, and died at his home in the city of St. Albans, Vermont, December 16th, 1915, in his 73rd year.

Until he was thirteen years of age, his education was received under an English tutor. In 1856, with his mother, brothers and sisters, he came to America. His first residence in Vermont was in the town of Fairfield; but during the early years here, he lived in different towns in Franklin and Lamoille counties, seeking better opportunities for employment and schooling.

He continued his studies in the public schools of Franklin and Lamoille counties, attending for a time People's Academy at Morrisville. In 1881, he enlisted in Company E, 7th Regiment of the Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and served in the Civil War for three years. He was stationed mainly in Louisiana and Florida, in the department of the Gulf. He took part, with the land forces, in the capture of New Orleans by Admiral Farragut and later in the battle of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. At one time, he had charge of the body-guard of General Asboth.

Later, under orders of the war department, he returned to Vermont, and with others, recruited the Seventh and Eighth Vermont Regiments to their full strength, after they had been decimated in the service. He had to conduct his recruits, in large numbers, to New York City, and thence by sea to the department of the Gulf, and was responsible for their safe transportation and arrival there. He was engaged in this service eight months.

In the fall of 1864, after the St. Albans Raid, he was appointed and served as first-lieutenant in a regiment organized in Vermont for local home protection. After he was mustered out, he attended school at Johnson and Morrisville; and later taught school, for a few months, in the town of Wolcott.

He studied law in the offices of Powers and Gleed, at Morrisville; and was admitted to the Vermont bar, at Hyde Park, in 1868. Before beginning the practice of his profession, he took a full course of law at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and was graduated from that institution in 1869. He took a special literary course, at the University; and was also graduated from a business college there.

He began the practice of law in Sheldon, Vermont, in January, 1870; and continued there, until the fall of 1889, when he removed to St. Albans, where he had afterwards resided, and there continued in active practice, until his last illness. In 1892, he formed a partnership, for the practice of law, with the Honorable H. Charles Royce, now deceased, under the firm name of Hogan and Royce. In 1900, Mr. Royce retired, and Mr. Hogan's son, George M. Hogan, took his place; and thereafter, the firm was Hogan and Hogan.

In politics, Mr. Hogan had been a Republican, since he became of age. He was State's Attorney in 1878-80; and represented Franklin county in the State Senate in 1882-84, serving on the judiciary committee, the committee on banks, and as chairman of the general committee. Under a special act of the legislature, he was appointed by the late ex-Governor E. J. Ormsbee, together with the late ex-Governor Roswell Farnham, of Bradford, and the late Doctor Jaynes, of Waterbury, commissioners to investigate conditions of the convict and criminal insane at Brattleboro; and the report of the commission, led the legislature subsequently to authorize the erection of the hospital for the insane at Waterbury.

Mr. Hogan represented the Vermont Bar Association at the annual meeting of the National Bar Association, at Washington, D. C., in 1892. He was president of the Vermont Bar Association in 1897-98.

He was appointed probation officer for Franklin county, April 2, 1900, which office he held at the time of his death.

He was a member of A. R. Hurlbut Post, No. 60, G. A. R., of which he was commander for two years. He was a Royal Arch Mason, being a member of Champlain Chapter, No. 1, St. Albans; and at one time was master of Haswell Lodge, No. 35, F. & A. M., at Sheldon. He was a deacon of the First Congregational church, in this city, at the time of his death.

October 12th, 1870, Mr. Hogan married Thirza Joanna Maynard, of Enosburgh, Vermont, who, with their two children, Minnie L., and George M., survives him.

Brother Hogan was well grounded in fundamentals of the law. As a student at the university, he received instruction under Thomas M. Cooley, and the acquaintance of instructor and student, thus begun, ripened into a warm personal friendship. Brother Hogan often spoke in words of highest appreciation of Judge Cooley's abilities and of the privilege of having been his pupil. The training that he received at that able professor's hands, and a natural tendency to thoroughness in his studies, laid a foundation for a knowledge of the law, broad and firm, upon which he built through life.

Throughout his practice, Brother Hogan approached the consideration of every legal question, through the door of fundamental rules and principles, and having found the principle of law within which the question came, he then looked for decisions that recognized the principle—and he was sure to find them. He was logical and accurate in reasoning; and forceful and persistent in argument.

As a counsellor, he was painstaking and thorough in the examination and consideration of matters submitted to him; and his advice to his clients was good. He was zealous in the interests of his clients. And in the preparation and trial of their cases, while never overstepping the bounds of honorable practice, he would investigate every circumstance to the last word, and follow every connected trail to its end; he examined every piece of evidence and matter of proof to discover vulnerable elements or subtle dangers, and few escaped him.

He was an able advocate. Having confidence in his own conceptions of the law and of the cause he represented, he stubbornly fought for his client, yielding to his adversary most reluctantly, but always after the manner of a well-bred and courteous gentleman. During the years of his most active service in professional work, he practiced beside such able lawyers as Judge Henry R. Start; Judge Alfred A. Hall; Heman S. Royce; Albert P. Cross; H. G. Edson; H. C. Adams; Park Davis; Guy C. Noble; C. W. Witters; Willard Farrington; W. D. Wilson; H. E. Rustad; H. Charles Royce; Henry A. Burt, and E. A. Sowles, all of whom he followed to the Court of Last Resort. Such lawyers recognized in Brother Hogan, a valuable associate and a formidable opponent. He was counsel in many important cases, reported in our State reports, and was ranked among the leading lawyers of Vermont.

He did not confine himself to a study of the law. He loved other books and read many, and on many subjects. The history of our own state and the life of our early inhabitants were especially interesting to him; and the writings of Roland E. Robinson were among the books that held for him a special charm.

He took an active interest in all the affairs of state, and in the civic welfare of his own commonwealth and home city.

By nature, he was optimistic, companionable and sympathetic. He enjoyed a "chat" with an old friend or a brother lawyer most intensely; his conversations were always interesting and usually embellished with well-told stories of Irish folk-lore, of which he had a fund.

A good citizen, a brave soldier, an able lawyer, a constant friend. The world is better because he lived.

RESOLUTIONS.

Be It Resolved: That the members of the Franklin County Bar Association do hereby express feelings of deep sorrow at the loss of Brother Charles P. Hogan.

Resolved: That these resolutions, and the foregoing sketch be spread upon the records of the Franklin County Bar Association; and that a copy thereof be sent by the Secretary, with expressions of sympathy, to the widow of the deceased.

Elmer Johnson,

Charles D. Watson,

Committee.
